SUN ON THE REFORMER

New York Paper's Story of Leung Chi-tso.

FACTS OF HIS CAREER

The Man Whose Head Is Worth Sixty-Five Thousand Dollars Now in Hawaii.

Leung Chi-tso will return to Honolulu in a few days from an Island tour. He is expected to leave for San Francisco in a few weeks. The following about him is from the New York Sun: Leung Chi-tso, one of the Chinese reformers for whose head the Dowager Empress has offered a reward of $50,000, is a young man, only 25, but he has had an active and varied career. He was born of a good but not wealthy family in the district of Sun Wui, near Canton. His grandfather bore the degree of B. A., and his father was one of the leading teachers in Sun Wui. Leung entered his father's school at the age of six years. At 12 he went to Canton to take his examination for the degree of B. A. in the great competitive examinations of the Chinese educational system. The examination was conducted by an inspector of schools appointed by the Emperor. There were 4,000 students at this examination, of whom thirty-six succeeded in winning the much-coveted degree, Leung securing the ninth place out of the thirty-six. Soon afterward he removed to Canton and entered the Kwong Ngar University. At the monthly examinations in this university, where there were 200 students, he always gained a high place.

At the age of 16 he attained the degree of Master of Arts and became engaged to a sister of Dr. Lee, Tuan Wai, an accomplished and highly educated young woman, principal of the High School in Shanghai. About this time Leung Chi-tso began the study of Western literature, entering the school of Kwang Yu Wei, the great reformer, at Canton. Here his interest in Western methods of science and government was very much quickened. He read all the books on these subjects which were then translated into Chinese. While in this school he frequently returned to his native village and assisted his father in establishing a school. He wrote voluminously for various publications, and secured a memorial embodying his ideas of reform. 200 signatures from among the literati of Peking. The memorial, however, never reached the Emperor, because of the influence of the conservative and reactionary officials then in power. At 22 he organized a Scientific and Progressive Association at Peking, of which many of the ablest Chinese scholars and missionaries resident in Peking were members. This association Leung was secretary, but was disbanded by the Emperor's order. The next year he went to Shanghai and began the publication of a magazine called China Progress. This publication had never a large circulation in China that the publication called Chinese Discussion, published in Yokohama, has secured.

On the appointment of Wong Chun Hin as Minister to Germany, Leung Chi-tso was asked to accept the post of Secretary of Legation, but he declined, to pursue his work of reform agitation. A little later he was asked to become Secretary of Legation at Washington, but he declined the appointment of Wu Ting Fang, the present Minister there. This he declined for the same reason, as he also declined the position of advisor to Shing Hang Shun, Minister of Railroads. About this time Viceroy Chong Chi Tung, Governor General Chin Po Chuan, and Inspector of Schools Kong Bew, all of Hunan province, established a university devoted to the encouragement of Western teaching and liberal ideas. Leung Chi-tso was called to the presidency. There was a faculty of six, and 120 board students and 1,200 day students. Many of them persons who had already achieved the degrees of A. B. or A. M. Auxiliary to this the Nam Hook Oratorical Association was established, of which Mr. Leung was made president. The influence of these two institutions was very soon and very forcibly felt and within a year the government of the whole province was put upon an entirely new basis. New police regulations were established more in conformity with Western ideas, and many reformatory institutions were established.

When Leung was 25, the Emperor Kwang Hsu took the reins of government. Leung was introduced to him by one of the Cabinet Ministers. The Emperor, impressed with his abilities, referred his name to the Tsung-li-Yamen for a report as to the propriety of appointing him to a responsible place in the Government. As members of the Tsung-li-Yamen, Prince Ching, Li Hung Chang and Chong Yam Hoon after investigating and reading his book and his magazine articles, strongly recommended him to the Emperor, and he was appointed private adviser to the Emperor and superintendent of the institute for the translation of Western books. At this time he became one of the organizers of the Anti Foot Binding Society in Shanghai. It was during this time that the remarkable series of reform edicts were promulgated. These aroused the conservative and reactionary elements in the Government as to lead the Empress to seize power herself, and send the reformers to death or exile. Leung Chi-tso was protected and enabled to escape by the Japanese Marquis Ito, then at Peking. He escaped to Japan on a Japanese cruiser and received the protection and kind treatment of Count Okuma, now Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs of Japan. Since going to Japan he has learned to read, write and speak the Japanese language, and has become a Japanese subject. He established a school in Yokohama for Chinese and another in Tokio, and is the editor of a paper in Yokohama called Chinese Discussion. He arrived in Honolulu on December 31 last. After four of the islands he expects to come here for travel and study.

Murder at Portland.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 1.—This morning the body of Naomi Morse was found in the brush near Willamette Heights Park with a bullet hole just over her heart. The supposed murderer is Riley L. Morse of Tacoma, the woman's husband, who was seen to enter the park with a woman a few minutes before the shooting, and who has disappeared. Thirty minutes after the shooting another pistol shot was heard in the direction of the Willamette river and many supposed Morse had killed himself, but no trace of his body was found. The woman, who was Miss Naomi Chute of this city, married Morse seven months ago. They lived in Tacoma. The woman's father, learning that Morse was not supporting his daughter, brought her back to Portland. Three days ago Morse appeared here and yesterday was with the woman all day. In the evening they boarded a street car and went to Willamette Heights, where a few minutes later the tragedy occurred.

EXPOSITION ATHLETES. Rules That Will Govern Sports at the French Fair.

NEW YORK, June 1.—A. G. Spaulding, American director of sports at the Paris Exposition, brought back with him from Paris some useful information for American athletes who intend to compete in the French games. This information has to do principally with the rules in vogue over there and is as follows: "The track will be of cinders and will measure 400 metres. There will be a special course for the steeplechase event. Nobody must touch any part of his body on that part of the course which lies over the starting point. Every race will be started by pistol. The sixty and 100-metre runs will be run in straight lines. Every runner will have his line marked out by having cord placed on the ground. These cords will be about 1.20 metres apart. In the 100-metre straightway hurdle race there will be ten hurdles, nine metres apart; fifteen metres between the first hurdle and the starting point and four metres between the last hurdle to the finish. The height of the hurdles will be 1.05 metres. Every hurdler will have to clear the hurdle and must not cut over the top of the hurdle. In the 200-metre hurdle race there will be ten hurdles over the course, fifteen metres from the start to the first hurdle and thirty metres from the last hurdle to the finish. The height of the hurdles will be 1.05 metres. In the 400-metre hurdle race there will be ten hurdles ninety metres from the start to the first hurdle, and thirty metres from the last hurdle to the finish. In the steeplechase event the hurdle will not be higher than 3.20 metres. Since there is a ditch to jump in this race, the runners may leap it or jump into the water, just as they choose. In the high jump each jumper will have three trials at every height. A trial is not counted as long as the jumper does not displace the bar. The ground must be perfectly horizontal and must have an elevation of at least one metre in front of the bar for the high jump and 3.50 metres for the pole vault.

In the broad jump each of the jumpers will jump three times and the three best jumps will be accorded to the five making the best scores. To fall backward, to recoil after jumping or to go over the line with either foot constitutes a trial. The discus will weigh 7.25 kg. A circle of two metres in diameter will be laid out. Every contestant may throw the shot three times; three new trials will be given to the five making the best puts. He will be declared the winner who throws the shot the furthest in eight attempts. The discus shall weigh 1.925 grams and shall have a cavity in the center for the placing of lead. The same rules hold good for the discus as for the shot put.
